

To Whom it may concern,

Accomack county schools purchased a "Bird X " electronic bird repeller in August of 2000. The unit was installed on the roof of a school located across the street from a seafood processing facility. This school had a brand new roof which was a dark green. Seagull droppings were turning the roof white. The feathers also presented a health hazard to the students. Once the "Bird X was operating the seagull problem that we were experiencing was almost immediately solved. The unit worked well for the first year and the seagull droppings were washed away eventually by the rain. The unit has been down for about 10 weeks now while it is being replaced and gulls have not yet returned. I would and have recommended the "Bird X" to others with gull problems and they too have had good results.

Sincerely,
